

AN EARLY WARNING SYSTEM

We've explored the wonders of the digestive tract—traveling from Human's mouth to anus—then passing through the gut wall into the blood to admire how the hard working liver cells protect the body by filtering the blood, disarming toxic substances, and storing life-giving glucose to keep Human energized and buoyant through the day. We've journeyed through the heart twice—on our way to the lungs and then with a mighty boost to deliver nutrients and oxygen to cells throughout Human's body. We've discovered the lymph system is a key part of Human's immune system, as well as carrying wastes including carbon dioxide (CO₂) to the blood to be expelled through the lungs. We flowed along with blood cells to marvel at the master chemist cells calculating ratios in the kidneys to keep the blood balanced while extracting waste material to pass along in Human's urine and we explored the workings of skin cells.

In addition, glands—thyroid, adrenal, ovaries, testes and more—spark with frequencies that send chemicals called hormones into the blood stream to provide checks and balances needed in Human's body. A network of nerve cells, with dense clusters in the brain, heart and gut, are key players in providing the instant communication that keeps all of us connected. What is the key to this instant communication from the top of Human's head, out to every extremity, and to the tips of each toe? The key for us cells is light—light from the sun and from fresh food—that Human's body absorbs. Light immediately triggers electrical connections for instant communication among us.

KEEPING THE LINES CLEAR

Now let's check out an early warning system—the invisible meridian system that gives us a heads-up when something is amiss—long before physical symptoms get Human's attention that something is wrong. Human's meridian system is an invisible network that transmits light to deliver the energy of the Life Force—the seeming empty space that always surrounds Human and us that is teeming with the energy and electromagnetic frequencies that support life. Cells at select points on Human's skin, called acupuncture points, more readily absorb the vibrations or frequencies of both light and sound.

When light enters Human's skin through these sensitive areas, the electromagnetic frequencies travel to the rest of us through meridians—invisible lines that run deeply into Human's body. Meridians hum with life-giving electromagnetic frequencies—a flow of energy that supports each one of us so we can facilitate all the processes going on in Human's body.

When skin cells, in the especially sensitive areas, absorb the frequencies of light and sound, the vibrations travel instantaneously along the meridians. For example, cells that maintain the function of Human's liver are fed these electromagnetic frequencies by the meridian that flows through the liver. Each of us benefits from, and loves, this live-giving energy.

Human became aware of the more subtle and invisible Life Force field or energy field that feeds the meridians when interacting with others. For example, when entering a room,

“You see, the body has arteries, veins, lymphatics and nerves. And it has an unseen but proven additional circuitry, the acupuncture meridians. They can be thought of as an electrical system that ties the whole body together.”

MERIDIAN PAIN RELIEF

A veteran who lost his lower legs to a land mine suffered so much pain in his missing feet that he was losing his will to live. Donna Eden, a therapist who works with the energy field surrounding the body, worked on him saying:

“This may sound crazy to you, but I believe I can hold some points in midair where your feet were and help you.”

She was referring to entry points for his meridians.

“At first it was painful for him to have me touch the area of his absent right foot.”

When he left her office, he left without pain. Depression and fear were also alleviated.

Human can feel the invisible vibrations emanating from those in the room. If there is disagreement among those in the room, Human is quick to feel those vibrations and the tension. This is true with even one angry person, as without seeing their face, Human will know there is a problem. If there is harmony or feelings of goodwill and enjoyment, Human will feel that too. The vibration of the emotions may be invisible but they are transmitted through the “Field” or the “Life Force” that surrounds and supports all of us. These vibrations mean that Human is never isolated ... understanding that this “Force” connects all.

Time to get physical again with a visit to the mouth. The jawbone is a first line of defense in the body. Damaging vibrations that arrive here are stored, attracting bacteria and other pathogens. If these vibrations aren't corrected, the disease-causing germs eventually work their way up into the teeth and many of you know what a toothache feels like. Here's the good news. In addition to a supply of nutrients from fresh fruits and vegetables, the jaw loves a really good, thorough chew—the exercise gives it the strength to wrestle with bacteria and viruses and kick them out. Chewing also massages the gums. This stimulates circulation so the blood and lymph can neutralize and carry away the pathogens. The damaging frequencies are vanquished and once again we cells store health-building vibrations in the jaw.

The invisible meridians flow through every tooth—connecting to organs and specific areas of the body. Human's jaw and teeth are a

LIGHT SHINES DEEP

Dr. Pankratov, a Russian researcher and his team, discovered the meridian system within our bodies conducts light when they applied light to a specific area on the skin.

“Suddenly, the experimenters registered a strong light signal—a tiny speck of light at a not illuminated area about 10 centimeters distant from the illuminated surface. One can imagine the surprise of the experimenters when they discovered the spot of light that had spread under the human skin ...”

Dr. Pankratove reported on research at the Institute for Clinical and Experimental Medicine in Novosibirsk, Russia conducted under the guidance of Prof. Kaznachejew saying:

“The most amazing fact was that the ‘light sensitive regions’ coincided with the well known acupuncture points on the body surface, described by ancient Chinese acupuncture experts for thousands of years and named ‘meridians’.

... “If for instance, a living organism at a certain spot is exposed to visible light, the light can travel immense distances, determined by the routing of the meridians. ... we are dealing with a ‘light distribution system’, similar to a fiber optics system.”

central switching station that relays messages carried in the meridians everywhere in Human's body. Teeth and jaw cells have a special responsibility to care for the body's energy flows. Guess what happens if tooth cells aren't in great shape? The vital energy flowing through a specific meridian gets blocked and cells in the areas or organs directly connected start to suffer. For example, we cells knew when the colon cells were sluggish and Human struggled with constipation, that a blocked meridian running through a tooth and the jaw was the problem.

Come on, let's squeeze into a tooth. We'll flow in with the blood that is entering through the root to deliver nutrients. This blood vessel brings us inside the tooth, into a canal in the pulp and then into the dentin of the tooth. See how porous the dentin is. A tooth may look solid but there are three or more miles or nearly five km of miniscule tubes running through here. That's not easy to imagine. With that hard enamel covering, Human forgets there is a beehive of activity in each tooth.

That's where a rich supply of minerals is important once again—to keep these teeth strong and healthy so they are able to resist viruses and bacteria that can multiply and cause decay. I'll put in another plug for chewing. In addition to stimulating saliva for digestion and stimulating meridian flow, chewing also helps the lymph pump wastes out of here. We rely on Human having a good chew. Let's squirt out of here with the lymph into the gum surrounding this tooth.

CHANGES TO TEETH AND JAW

The research of Weston Price proved that refined food diets create narrower jaws with crowded, crooked teeth for the next generation. The result is not only dental problems but health problems as well ... that increase with each generation.

Nutrition and Physical Degeneration,

Tooth cells would like you to know that the big secret to keeping them healthy starts in the gut. It was when Human had food, like undigested protein, putrefying in the gut that teeth weakened. They were weakened by ammonia gas that formed and seeped through the gut lining and up here. With Human's diet rich in nutrients from fruits and vegetables, hydrochloric acid (HCl) was restored to keep digestion purring and the intestinal tract humming.

One last look at a tooth. It's resting in a hammock—a lining or membrane in the gum that keeps the tooth attached to the jawbone. These hammocks and Human's gums are healthy once again so the meridian system is clear to deliver those gentle and delicious electromagnetic frequencies throughout the body.

Human's meridian system is an early warning system to let us know what needs attention. We're aware of it and Human is learning to pay attention to any symptoms before they become more severe—to get back on track with a healthy lifestyle. Amazing how we cells can restore good health when we get plenty of fruits and vegetables along with even gentle exercise ... and we rely on Human's positive attitude too.

The Creator made Human's body capable of maintaining or restoring itself to good health!

GIVING LIFE MEANING

The Knights Templar went searching for the Holy Grail not because of the money they'd get for this gold vessel but because of the mystical significance it was said to hold as the cup Jesus drank from at the Last Supper. Though the knights turned up hundreds upon hundreds of gold cups, they were cast off as worthless because they didn't hold the power. It was all about the spiritual meaning.
